Make your voice
heard on a decision facing Americans about pandemic influenza...

Experts say chances of a deadly worldwide outbreak of flu are increasing.

Early in the outbreak, the United States will not have an adequate supply of vaccine or drugs and may have to use disease control measures such as closing schools and canceling major public gatherings.

Decisions about what control measures we should put in place and how they will work are not just for the experts to make.

They need your help.

Sign up now to spend a day getting the additional facts you need, talking frankly about pandemic flu with other citizens, and sharing your views for public health officials.
